A daily star route mail has been established from Glendale to McNamee. This will enable the subscribers of the Star at the latter place to receive papers on the same day of publication. With the exception of one or two offices the News goes to every office in the county on the first day it is published.

The Perry County Farmers' Institute under the auspices of the State University of Indiana, will be held at Tobin's point just opposite this city November 13 and 14. Till Groggs says there will be some of the big game present during the meeting to sport farming, and his town is making arrangements to entertain 500 or a thousand people.

There are thousands and thousands of dollars worth of property in this town in the maw of the fire fiend. It is only a question of time. The fire will come. Our houses and goods will be swept away and not a dollar of insurance to replace them. Isn't it alarming? Just think of it, good people. Our only remedy is water works—build them and don't wait about it.

There is the most attractive place in the city of Louisville, especially on Saturday night is the great Mammoth Clothing establishment of Kleinhaus & Simonson. Their large building is beautifully illuminated and a fine band of music gives a free concert, which attracts thousands of people during the evening. They are the greatest hustlers after trade in that city.

The citizens of Owensboro have been duped to the tune of about $1,000 by a party of portrait men who have been canvassing that city for the past three weeks securing subscriptions to a paper with the promise that after a certain number of copies had been taken and paid for, the subscribers would be entitled to a handsome picture. Last week they turned up missing leaving their subscribers in the lurch.

Always use the medicine that will do the most good, and for kidney and liver trouble, Lightning Kidney & Liver Remedy is the best. Messrs. Gray & Had-dow, Barlow, O., says: "We have handled medicines of different kinds for years and have never handled anything that equals Lightning Kidney & Liver Remedy. One of our customers has been suffering for years with kidney trouble, and has used a great deal of kidney and liver cure, but did not receive much, if any benefit. He then tried Lightning Kidney & Liver Remedy, and will use nothing else. He says he would rather pay the price for it than to take the other for nothing." For sale by all dealers.

Wright-Mercer.

A handsome wedding and in fact the most brilliant of the season was that of Mr. Joseph E. Wright, of Louisville, and Miss Mercedes of Hardinsburg, last Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the M. E. church South. The church was beautifully decorated and a large crowd assembled to witness the ceremony. The marriage rites were solemnized by Rev. J. P. Goodson of Hawesville. As the bridal couple entered the church the choir sang the "Bridal Chorus" from Leizinger, led by Miss Ella Goodson. The whole affair was very beautiful and impressive. After the ceremony the pair left on a special car for Louisville, their future home.

The groom is a prominent young business man of Louisville and well connected. The bride, Miss Mercedes, daughter of Judge Mercer, of Hardinsburg, and very popular in society here. A number of friends gathered at the depot to extend the young couple a farewell and their congratulations.

What She Sees and Hears to Write About.

Notwithstanding the quantity of horse running in the West end and scarcity of gas there too, our little city continues to boom—in that we are soon to have water works. Instead of ringing the bells and seeing our houses burn down, we shall have a fine fire engine and the small boy and the ladies shall have all the fun of running to see the fire put out.

What shall we talk to the girls about? I dare say they have plenty of advice from loving mothers. Still we have them so well that we'll sweeten it and offer some help. For instance this "making a mash" as it is vulgarly called in public places of amusement is a dangerous sport to engage in, and precious girls can not be too careful at all times, under all circumstances, and in all places in protecting their fair names and honor. Don't "mash" for those poor, silly fellows are simply "killing time," and having sport at your expense. By all means make a confident of your mother. She should know everything that concerns her daughter, especially about her sweetheart. You will find no better judge in the world of a young man than your mother, remember that.

What are we to say to a "latter" man or woman, who has nothing else to do and so far forgets himself as to indulge in slander. Here is a rule that all "latter" before repeating that they hear might observe first, is it true? Is it just? Is it necessary? The unkind things we say of each other, can not be unkind, no more than an unkind deed can be unkind, also can we restore the perfume to the vase when once it has been spilt away, or put the corn silks back on the corn, or mend the butterfly's wing that has been crushed by a heavy load.

Here is the best evidence upon Bernhardt we have ever seen, I quote it from the Chicago Herald. "Sara Bernhardt is without a living rival. With talent so transcendent is it to be deplored that she condescends to make her art a means for degradation of drama and the debasement of the standards of mankind concerning woman."

Bernhardt has chosen to teach her time so far as that lies within the purview of her capacity that the role of woman in the world is worse than tragic, that it is helpless, subordinate to the merely stronger propensity of passionateness of the other half of the human race; that it is the highest art that most powerfully depicts woman in her lowest condition of morals. Not only is woman in her plays one of despair and shame but her shame is the essence of the play. The ignoble views of men necessarily enter into drama, for drama is only human nature limited in action. Greeds, envy, jealousy, veritally like Bernhardt's are worthy of higher dedication. She is the one great actress who seems to choose that the whole other artifice shall present impersonations in which the villainous life is secondary, her gifts shall be devoted to a limited category of plays in which there shall be no lesson of aspiration, no hope, no moral, no heroic view and nothing of the achievement of woman in the domain of morals or in any of the many fields of renown in which woman has borne her part as highly as man."

Deits, the Bigamist, Gets Six Years in the Pen.

A Life of Shame and Murder last, deits Brought to Light.

Henry I. Deits, who was brought to Hardinsburg last week from Louisville for a charge of bigamy, went before the court last Friday, entered a plea of guilty, and the jury fixed his sentence at six years in the penitentiary. The grand jury found no trouble in finding an indictment against Deits, and when it was returned into court, and a day fixed for the trial Deits could not stand the trial, but entered a plea of guilty. If he had been charged with bigamy, he would probably have been granted, for there were plenty of witnesses who were willing to pile up the testimony as to his guilt, and the wicked life he had been leading. Deits is a well known man in the upper part of this county, where he married one of his wives about ten years ago. She was a Miss Pennington and a highly respected young lady. Deits came for the past fifteen years has been a bad one, and it is a wonder that he has escaped punishment so long. His first venture in the matrimonial business (for he has 3 living wives) was in Carthage, Ind., in 1873. There he married a woman nearly twice his senior in years, squandered all her property about $5,000 and money and skipped. He even carried away some of her valuable jewelry, but this was subsequently recovered. Deits then came to Kentucky and dropped in at Bevelville. Wife No. 2 had been dead for some time, but Deits went on with the marrying business just the same. At Bevelville he spruced up, wore nice clothes, and more than one of the fair ones there it is said, had been up for him. In a short time Deits courted and won the heart and hand of Miss Jennie Pennington, of that place, a lovely girl of tender years, and the next day he married her. Miss Pennington and Capt. Will Pennington, of Louisville. They were married and moved to Louisville and four children were born to the union. In the mean while Deits became worthless and neglected his wife and children until he was finally driven away from their home by his wife's father. He then went to the east end of the city and here he found wife No. 3. They went over to Jeffersonville and were married. Deits then came back to Louisville and living in comparative ease until wife No. 2 appeared upon the scene. When she discovered that her husband had actually married another woman and was living right in the same city as herself, her rage was unfeigned, and she immediately reported the facts to the police. Then it was that Capt. Pennington went
